

Mellon/ACLS
PUBLIC FELLOWS PROGRAM

Job Title:	Program Officer, Media & Democracy Project
Organization:	Social Science Research Council
Location:	Brooklyn, NY
Stipend:	$67,500 with health insurance for the fellow, professional development funds, and relocation allowance
Start Date:	September 4, 2018

ORGANIZATION DESCRIPTION

Founded in 1923, the Social Science Research Council (SSRC) is an independent, international, nonprofit organization devoted to the advancement of interdisciplinary research in the humanities and social sciences through a wide variety of workshops and conferences, fellowships and grants, summer training institutes, scholarly exchanges, research, and publications. Learn more at www.ssrc.org.

POSITION DESCRIPTION

The SSRC invites applications for the position of Program Officer in the Media & Democracy Project, which is a collaborative effort shared by the Council's Anxieties of Democracy and Digital Culture programs. This position will report to the Director of the Digital Culture program and will work with a team of professionals at the SSRC office in Brooklyn, New York.

With support from the Knight Foundation, the Media & Democracy project focuses on the relationship between a changing media on the one hand, and democratic practices and institutions on the other. The project explores the trajectories of technological, social, and economic change in the media and how these changes contribute to, and potentially can rectify, current democratic anxieties. Through a range of projects, the Program Officer will help foster engagement and cooperation among humanities scholars, social scientists, journalists, and others working on the relationship between media and democracy. The successful candidate will bridge the work between practitioners and scholars, facilitate new and innovative scholarship in this critical area of study, and work to elevate the quality of both academic and public discussion surrounding it. Examples of themes and research areas include, but are not limited to:

- The changing political economy of media and communication;
- The effect of social media algorithms on civic engagement and news consumption;
- How social media is used for persuasion and propaganda;
- How technological, legal, and economic changes influence media innovation; and
- The political impact of media's effect on privacy, the use of micro-targeting, and the creation of information bubbles.

Key duties and responsibilities:

- Researching topics related to Media & Democracy, resulting in internal and external reports and media projects, and public-facing projects and workshops;
- Overseeing plans for upcoming events, including conferences, workshops, and other meetings;
- Facilitating communication and collaboration among a wide and interdisciplinary group of researchers, journalists, technologists, and other members of the program's network;

This position is only available through the Mellon/ACLS Public Fellows program.
You may not contact the host institution to inquire about this position.

- Developing and/or aggregating training documentation demonstrating approaches and methods (including digital methods) useful for journalists and scholars studying media and democracy;
- Contributing to and providing editorial support for SSRC publications Parameters and The Democracy Papers;
- Tracking program budget, and writing annual reports and proposals to funders. Will also be responsible for program budget administration, expenses, and reporting on financial health of the program; and
- Representing SSRC at various outreach events, including conferences.

This is a new position, created to advance the aims of the Media & Democracy project. The position offers rich experience in both advanced scholarly research and non-profit administration. The successful candidate will work closely with a national network of preeminent scholars, journalists, and practitioners. In-depth experience with project and grant administration, event coordination, and policy-driven and public-facing research will situate the Program Officer for future opportunities in higher education, non-profit, and government contexts.

QUALIFICATIONS

Required

- PhD in the humanities or social sciences;
- Interest in the relationship of media and democratic institutions; the governance of media and its changing business models; and the ways in which citizens engage media in relation to their political participation and social interaction;
- Demonstrated project management experience, with ability to work collaboratively, as well as to independently manage multiple priorities and projects;
- Demonstrated excellent written and oral communication skills, including the ability to communicate effectively to a variety of audiences; and
- Excellent organizational skills, with strong attention to detail.

Preferred

- Familiarity with the use of and technical approaches to studying social media platforms (Facebook, Twitter, reddit, among others) or experience with data science or algorithmic analysis;
- Training with programming languages (e.g. Python) or statistical packages (e.g. R), and/or willingness to learn in order to support programmatic goals;
- Grant proposal writing experience; and
- Editorial experience and familiarity with web-publishing platforms (e.g. Wordpress).

APPLICATIONS

- Information on the Mellon/ACLS Public Fellows Program: www.acls.org/programs/publicfellows
- All applications must be submitted through the ACLS Online Fellowship Application System (ofa.acls.org)
- Application deadline: March 14, 2018, 9 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time

This position is only available through the Mellon/ACLS Public Fellows program. You may not contact the host institution to inquire about this position.